BRIDGED WITH DEAD BODIES

CANALS OF BELGIUM SEAM, NOT STOP, THE CONFLICT

NINTH DAY OF THE BLOODIEST BATTLE THE WORLD HAS EVER KNOWN

Paris, Oct. 28.—Although the Germans have lost ground near Dixmunde, the allies and invaders are still locked in a death grip along the Yser canal. With unparalleled ferocity, back and forth across the corpse choked stream the battle has raged now for a week. Seven times the Germans have crossed to the west side only to be driven back by the allies with fearful slaughter.

At some points corpses almost completely dammed the canal, soldiers using the piles of dead for bridges.

The Belgian village of Lange-marck has been destroyed. Both banks of the canal are lined with unburied dead, neglected wounded, carcasses of horses, shattered rifles and cannon and cast off equipment.

ALLIES ARE ADVANCING

Paris, Oct. 28.—The British and French are advancing on both wings, is the official announcement at three o'clock this afternoon.

It is reported that the Germans are making night attacks east of the Aisne, in their endeavor to assume the offensive in that region.

In districts about Craonne and northeast of Rheims, German attacks have been repulsed. The Germans lost two thousand killed and wounded in the Craonne district.

INVASION OF ENGLAND

Depends on Germans Capturing Dunkirk, Calais and Dieppe

London, Oct. 28.—The Daily Mail's Bergen correspondent quotes the Saxon State Gazette for the following statement made by a general in the adjutant-general's office in the war department in Berlin: "If the English watch our naval stations in the neighborhood of Heligoland is almost impossible now it will become quite impossible when Belgium and the north coast of France to the mouth of the Seine are in German hands.

"In course of time we shall possess Calais and probably Dieppe and Havre. Our twelve-inch howitzers have the large range of fourteen miles and the seventeen-inch a still greater range. England can expect still more artillery surprises. Even if we cannot shoot from the French coast to the English coast, a safety zone could be made for German ships covering more than half the navigable water.

"The French harbors will serve as bases for torpedo boats, submarines, cruisers and Zeppelins and can be made impregnable from the sea by a double or triple row of mines. If this triple field should be laid from the French coast to the English coast then Portsmouth and Plymouth would be cut off from the North Sea and connection around Scotland would be difficult.

"The possibility of laying such mines is not doubted as they could be laid under cover of artillery. Our submarines and torpedo division also would come into action. An invasion of England would be easily possible."
